

Cultural Considerations in Patient Care

Presented by Pam Lojewski, MDiv, Heartland Hospice

Who we are is a compilation of many things, including cultural and religious factors. These things become especially important at critical times in life, like health crises or the end of life. When caregivers are more aware, we can be more nurturing, responsive and caring to the whole person, beyond "symptoms". Come, learn and contribute to others' learning about how such things impact patients and families.
