

MINIMIZING CONFUSION & COMBATIVE BEHAVIORS IN DEMENTIA PATIENTS DURING TRANSITION

A WEBINAR PRESENTATION

Presented by Jacqueline Boyd, The Care Plan

Transitions can cause stress and anxiety for many of us, whether it is a move, participating in a new activity or being in an unfamiliar environment. People living with dementia process transitions in a unique way. Stress or anxiety can manifest in problematic behaviors such as verbal or physical outbursts, refusal, or anger. Together we will help equip you to facilitate successful transitions, minimize confusion and combative behaviors for clients with dementia. Learn new strategies and interventions to support wellness for your clients and team!
