5:30pm – 6:30pm Presentation

Taking care of an aging family member is up there as one of the most important roles one will take during one's lives - and one of the most daunting and demanding roles one will ever experience. A task that shouldn't be navigated all alone. What legal documents does one need to put in place in advance? What health care and financial decisions is one allowed to make for a loved one? What is one legally obligated to do or not do? And what professionals and community resources are available to help navigate the best long-term care plan possible for one's loved one? This session will provide valuable information and advice that everyone needs to know.
